DEBT RECOVERY IN ALBERTA

Dick Dunlop and Tamara M. Buckwold

This book is designed to provide a thorough examination of the practical and conceptual implications of the Civil Enforcement Act and related legislation, to describe, criticize and synthesize the case law addressing Alberta's reinvented system of judgment enforcement law and to highlight aspects of that system warranting reconsideration or amendment.

This book discusses two areas of creditor-debtor law in Alberta. The first is the complex system of remedies available to creditors to collect money claims and judgments from their debtors. The central statute is the Civil Enforcement Act and its accompanying regulation. The second area is the large body of common law and statutes governing challenges to fraudulent conveyances and preferences by which debtors attempt to transfer property away to others and out of the clutches of their creditors.
